Francesco Petrarca, who was born in 1304, is known as the first great humanist in history; in fact, he is the father of humanism. Although Petrarch grew up in Italy, he traveled widely and collected numerous ancient texts. Petrarca was pulled between two worlds, his desire to improve the world and the world of antiques.

What Was Renaissance Humanism? - WorldAtlas.com

The present world became an end in itself instead of simply preparation of a world to come. Indeed, as the age of Renaissance humanism wore on, the distinction between this world (the City of Man) and the next (the City of God) tended to disappear. Beauty was believed to afford at least some glimpse of a transcendental existence.

Renaissance Humanism - The History Guide

Periodical: Urban Omnibus. Characteristics: Urbanism, Urban Planning, and Humanism. Thesis: To achieve a foresighted approach of urbanization, we should value humanism as the most essential element rather than in negligence of people and culture. Population growth and the acceleration of urbanization lead to increasing needs for new buildings.
